The finite elemente pagode Signature mkII is a top-of-the-line equipment support system offering ultimate performance and a sleek design. The pagode Signature mkII utilises HCCT lightweight honeycomb core platforms and shelves, which are internally braced and provide enhanced stability. These platforms are clamped in place using ‘sidespike technology,’ which effectively channels vibrational energy away from the product. The overall design of the stand has been refined in the mkII version, creating a sleek and aesthetically pleasing appearance.

Sonically, the pagode Signature mkII produces a graceful and relaxed sound, with neutrality and a remarkable ability to calm and focus the listener. Despite its serene influence, the equipment stand does not sacrifice excitement or detail, as it also boasts excellent transient response, dynamic range, and tonal balance. However, it is important to pair the equipment stand with high-grade electronics to fully appreciate its capabilities.

The pagode Signature mkII is also a significant improvement over its predecessor. It offers a step-change in terms of design and performance, making it a worthy upgrade for those who already own the original Signature.

In our review, Alan Sircom states: “I like the new look of finite elemente pagode Signature mkII. Its clean lines and reassuring build quality, coupled with the sort of effortless neutrality and focus it brings to high-end equipment make it one of the obvious choices for top-notch audio systems.”
